At New American Careers, our goal is to ensure a stable, diversified, and innovative workforce for employers while unlocking opportunity for refugees and immigrants seeking meaningful employment.

Hiring immigrant and refugee jobseekers gives employers access to a large pool of talented professionals who are eager to transfer their skills to the American workforce—and who bring with them extensive levels of experience, education, resourcefulness, and integrity.

We work with candidates at all levels of experience along the path of career growth.

As a subsidiary of Global Refuge, New American Careers leverages the strength and resources of a large and dynamic network to access and create valuable relationships between outstanding candidates and employers committed to strengthening their workforce and helping pave the way to self-sufficiency for New Americans.

With resume building, interview training, on-the-job training, and other offerings, our team provides success-driven tools to make a new way forward for refugees, immigrants, and asylum seekers. We also partner with community colleges, vocational schools, and economic development offices in the community to provide additional resources for professional opportunities and growth.

We proactively connect top candidates to employers who care.

We believe that the best relationships are built on a foundation of trust and mutuality. That's why we're committed to working only with employers that offer living wages and are willing to adopt supportive practices for New American employees, including transportation, English language education, and more. In return, employers enjoy new ideas, creativity, and innovation that can enhance processes, build a more dynamic company culture, and transform the work environment for the better.
